Frequently Asked Questions

A: What do Coupons mean in Marketing?

Q: Coupons are a popular marketing tool these days. By giving customers a discount, a company appreciates their valued customers. At the same time, customers benefit from coupon discounts, especially brand-conscious ones. In short, coupons are the marketing tools that attract people to a business.

A: How do Coupons attract Customers?

Q: Coupons attract customers in several ways:

- They let your customers know you are making a special effort to show them how much you appreciate their business.
- They let your customers know that you value their business enough to offer them a discount.
- They show potential customers that your store cares enough to give them a discount.
- They let your customers know that you are committed to offering them the best deal possible.
- They let your customers know that you want repeat business.
- They help you better understand what your customers want from your business.

A: What are the benefits of Coupons?

Q: Coupons can reduce the buying price of your purchase. This is because the coupon gives you discounts on your purchase. It is beneficial for those who want to save a bit of money. Coupons also allow to try out products and services that otherwise would have been cost-prohibitive. They also help small businesses grow, attract new customers and build their brand. Another benefit of coupons is that they help level the playing field for smaller and younger businesses by giving them the same ability to offer deals as more prominent and more established companies.

A: Why do companies issue Coupons?

Q: Coupons are an effective way to build customer loyalty through repeat purchases. Coupons also aid in new customer acquisition by appealing to customers with low interest or a low price tolerance. For customers, coupons create opportunities to save money. Another reason is that Coupons help promote the company's products, increase its sales, and improve its brand recognition.

A: Why am I not able to redeem my Coupon?

Q: Ouch! Following reason might explain why.

You are not entering the correct coupon code.

You have already utilized your coupon code once which cannot be redeemed again.

You are trying to redeem the coupon after its expiration.

You are not using the curated link created for you.
